

As if there isn't enough control over what we watch as it is, this proposal seems to undermine the ability of anyone to choose what they want to watch and when. It should be irrelevant to all what my particular interests are, and this seems to be a type of personal privacy invasion. If we are already paying to see what we somewhat want to view or have a choice to see, why put any further restrictions on these actions? Please reconsider your actions. Thanks